

Patient data & tissue samples - benefits, barriers & concerns

Tuesday, 09 May 2017
1000 to 1600

Nunn Hall, Institute of Education
20 Bedford Way, London, WC1H 0AL

A workshop to examine and discuss:

Tissue samples and the data pathway

Current governance and what it could/should be

Consent including dynamic consent versus broad consent

How the use of data might influence the decision to donate

Delegates will hear from pathologists, patients, researchers and governing bodies.
Via a mixture of talks, questions & answers and debate, we will examine the benefits of and barriers to donating tissue.

The workshop is aimed at patients, the public, researchers, biobankers and charities, but is open to all who are interested.

Registration is open from Monday, 3 April to Monday, 1 May Please email events@usemydata.org.uk

Bursaries are available for patients, relatives and carers - please indicate your requirements at the initial stage of registration.

"I'd like to know that any info on my records (including samples, tissue, scans, etc.) can be used to aid understanding & research...If others can benefit in some way (as I have from those whose data/tissues/records have been used and shared in the past) then use it & share it!"